Actors Who Began as Minstrels. Francis Wilson, in Scribner's Magazine

Back again in the cars, off for Cleveland and at our midnight repast the subject of minstrels came up. Jefferson said he thought he was one of the first men to black his face after the appearance and success of

"I suppose," said Mrs. Drew, "there are very few men in this company who have not at one time or another been associated with minstrel performances. "I played 'Brudder Jones,' " said Mr. Jefbusiness." Goodwin exclaimed. "Yes," I remarked. "because we were there together." 'Well." joined in Crane, "I was on the tambourine end with Campbell's minstrels." I remember telling this at Lawrence Barrett's house, at Cohasset, where the rest of the party consisted of Edwin Booth and Stuart Robson. Booth then told how he and J. S. Clarke were minstrels in their younger days, and he followed this up by declaring that he used to "pick a little on the banjo." I laughed, and Booth inquired the reason, and I added, "Oh, nothing much, only Booth and the banjo seemed such an odd combins

Popular Notion Explodes.

From the Detroit News, It has long been a popular notion that ciergymen's sons are less likely to achieve distinction in life than the children of laymen. This is probably due to the fact that when a clergyman's son goes to the dogs in a fashion that attracts public notice his father's calling is always lugged into the story, but when the son of a lawyer or of a member of any other profession disgraces himself in a similar way no account is taken of the relationship. Bishop Welldon has proved the popular notion to be a fallacy. In an article which he has just published in the Fortnightly Review, in London, he shows that against the 510 and 3,770 children of lawyers and doctors, respectively, who have won eminence in English history, ,250 sons of the parsonage have attained fame. The list includes among philosophers Cudworth, Hartley, Hobbes, Reld, Dugald Stewart, Thomas Hill Green and Henry Sidgwick; in art, Sir Joshua Reynolds and Sir Christopher Wren; among the poets, Ben Jonson, Fletcher, Marvell, Otway, Thompson, Tickell, Comper and Tennyson; among the historians, Allison, Fuller, Hai-lam, Robertson and Froude; among the novelists, Charles Kingsley.

Disappearing Hotel Towels.

From the Philadelphia Bulletin. "We lose money enough in stolen towels every week to board half a dozen porters," said a hotel clerk. "We never know exactly where they go, but they certainly disappear, and that right fast. If some of the people who take our towels would exert their energies in a more laudable vocation they would have been rich many moons ago. "There is scarcely a room in the hotel that does not lose a towel at least three times a week. Of course, we place several kinds-face towels, bath towels and just plain towels—in each one, and some one finds them so attractive that they are dropped into a grip and hustled out with the remainder of the luggage.

"When you figure that a good bath towel costs from 10 to 20 cents and other towels anywhere from 3 to 5 cents, you probably can estimate the dead loss to a hotel. It is very convenient to drop them into satchels, suit cases or trunks, and they are right handy to wrap shoes or other dirty articles

Politics in Alabama, So Far as Appointments Go-Probable Veto of a Court Bill.

President Roosevelt has received the first pen for signing the rate bill that Congress is expected to lay before him. The pen is also to be used for disapproving any measure that does not suit him. It is probable that many other pens will come along in the course of time. The first one nas a history. It was made by T. G. Harris, a wheelwright in the employ of the quartermaster of the United States army at Fort Robinson, Neb. Mr. Harris served in the same capacity in the Philippines and brought to the United States with him some ebony. He made the pen staff from the ebony, mounted it with gold, secured an easy pen and attached it and forwarded it to Representative Kinkald of Nebraska, with a request for presentation at the White House. The President directed Mr. Kinkaid to convey his thanks to Mr. Harris for the instrument Probable Veto of Court Bill.

Representative Garner of Texas talked to the President this morning about a court bill in which he is interested. Mr. Garner got through Congress a bill dividing the federal district court of the San Antonio and El Paso district into another division so as to hold court at Del Rio.

can Antonio and El Paso are 600 miles apart, and persons living between the two territories have to travel several hundred miles to get to places where the courts are miles to get to places where the courts are held. As Del Rio is between the two places, it was thought best to shorten the distance for attendance at courts. No new judge or other court machinery except a clerk was provided for. The President referred tae bill to the Department of Justice, which has recommended that the bill be disapproved, as there is no necessity for the new court place. It is regarded as probable that the President will follow this recommendation. There are a large number of able that the President will follow this recommendation. There are a large number of bills pending in Congress for new judicial districts, new divisions of present districts and similar legislation. The judiciary committee of the House has sat down on a large part of these measures and has refused to report many of them. Those that have been reported and passed have not met with cordial receptions at the Department of Justice and White House

The Betsy Ross House.

Thayer, Spring Valley; Z. C. Goss, Wabasha; W. H. Nichols, Belleplaine.

From the Philadelphia Inquirer. After many years of agitation the Betsy Ross house on Arch street, where the first American flag was made, has been purchased and it is now offered to the government. We have no doubt that the gift will be accepted, for the expense of maintenance will be small and the relic is of the highest patriotic value. The amount paid for the house was $25,000 and the sum was contributed by over one million persons, principally school children. This is an average of two and one-half cents each, not including the cost of administration and collection. It would be interesting to know just how much has been collected altogether for the purpose. We imagine that the average contribution was much larger than is indicated by the cost price of the house. Doubtless now that the work is concluded the association will soon present a balance sheet. It is a matter of congratulation that the work is completed and that the quaint little building in the wholesale district is to be preserved for posterity. In the last ten years it has been a popular visiting place for strangers in the city and will continue for generations as one of the shrines of of two and one-half cents each, not includ-

GEN. WOOD ON STORIES OF THE MT. DAJO FIGHT.

Secretary Taft has received two cable grams from Gen. Leonard Wood at Manila regarding the fight with the Moros last week. The first is dated yesterday, and is

"If more detailed information concerning the facts of the fight at Mount Dajo is desired I suggest that Maj. Hugh L. Scott be called upon. He is thoroughly familiar with the situation, having spent eight months in the attempt to get these people off the mountain without fighting."

The officer referred to was the governor of the Moro provinces and was criticised in some of the first cables from Manila as having caused the trouble by over-leniency toward the Moros. He is now in this country on leave of absence and has come to Washington in answer to Secretary Taft's summons to afford information.

Sensational Stories Faked.

The second cablegram was dated at Manila today, and reads as follows:

"Sensational cables sent to the United States relating to the Mouat Dajo fight were made up in Manila. No references in any cable from Mindanao as to killing of women and children. No receipt of Col. Andrews' condensed report of the fight at Washington. American newspapers cabled for details. Reporters had no other information than my report telegraphed to Col. Andrews, and supplied sensational features." nila today, and reads as follows:

Secretary Taft to Be Heard.

Secretary Taft expects to go before the military committee of the Senate some day this week, and it is probable that he will, when he appears, be fortified with such information "clatics to the Mount Dajo fight and the conditions in that section of the archipelano as can be supplied ny Maj. Scott and in these cablegrams from Maj. Gen. Wood. He will also throw some Ma). Gen. Wood. He will also throw some light on the subject of Gen. Wood's mileage when he made his trip list sammer from Manila to this country and return, circling the globe in doing so. The substance of the Secretary's communication will be comprised in the statement that this trip was made exactly as or level by the army surgeons. It will also be stated that Gen. Wood returned to the Philippines against the advice of the London specialist who operated on his nead.

In response to a resolution of the Senate.

In response to a resolution of the Senate, introduced by Senator Culberson, the Secretary of War today transmitted to the Senate the telegraphic correspondence relating to the recent battle between the United States trans and the Marcs on Maunt Daio to the recent battle between the United States troops and the Moros on Mount Dajo, near Jolo, P. I. The correspondence is transmitted by Secretary Taft without comment. It contains no additional information to that given out at the War Department at the time.

SUIT FOR DAMAGES.

Alleged That Randall Steamboat Company Caused Loss of a Position.

Bennett A. Fowler today instituted proceedings in the District Supreme Court against the E. S. Randall Steamboat Company to recover damages in the sum of $5,000 for alleged breach of contract. The plaintiff charges that the defendant company August 12, 1905, entered into a contract to convey him to Colonial Beach, Va., that day and back to Washington on any of the thirty days thereafter. He avers that he presented himself the next day at the wharf of the company at Colonial Beach to return to Washington, but declares that the company at that time failed to transport him back to this city. He alleges that the company had not made adequate arrangements for the accommodation of all the passengers.

By reason of his alleged inability to make

Colonial Beach a day, entalling additional expense and causing him to lose his position as an insurance agent in Washington. He is represented by Attorneys D. W. Baker, Wilton J. Lambert and George M.

The Social Deliverance.

From the New York Mgil.

The man or woman who habitually and normally leads a quiet life cannot fall to be surprised and even a little shocked at the statement that society people are heartily glad that Lent has come, because it promises to give them a little much-needed repose. One-half the world not only does not know how the other half lives-it cannot even comprehend the other half's motives, nor in imagination put itself in the other's place. That a religious ban should be necessary to make people take a rest from a form of wearying endeavor that they need not make at all—that only costs them money, worry and often illness-is surely difficult of comprehension to the man of the quiet life.

A difficult matter for the society person to understand, on the other hand, is the fact that the man or woman who recogfact that the man or woman who recognizes no "social duties," and derives no pleasure whatever from asemblies, calls and the interchange of more or less formal civilities, need not, and generally does not, lead an unsocial life. Yet it is one thing to keep entirely out of the social whirl, and another thing to be a recluse and a skulker. A social life, in the uncorrupted sense of the term, is a life amid companions.
One may live quite heartly, agreeably and helpfully among one's fellows without the slightest obedience to forms, and without even making an engagement except as the rarest of matters. It is even possible to lead a life full of the most gracious attentions of social intercourse without subjecting it to a schedule, or spoiling one's ease.

ing it to a schedule, or spoiling one's ease. American Women.

Mrs. Craigle, in the London Chronicle.

American women take little or no interest in politics. A woman taking a keen interest in politics is really so rare as to be abnormal. Women play no part in the elections. It shows how adaptable American women are that when they marry English husbands and come here they generally come to the front in electioneering.

What is the reason? Well, it simply is not the custom. All American men are interested in politics, whether they go in for them much or not, but it simply is not the custom for women to understand anything either about politics or business. American husbands, you know never talk to their husbands, you know, never talk to their wives about professional or business affairs. And the wives interest themselves in literary and musical and artistle matters. As are sult they have, perhaps, the finest opera and the finest concerts in the world. And of course in social matters the American woman is supreme.

Oh, no, I am not at all sorry to be back in England. I am very fond of England. All I mean is that in America men have to subordinate themselves entirely to women's subordinate themselves entirely to women's interests. I don't say the women are the happier for it—I only say it is the fact.

Personally, I think the French method, where the wife is told everything about the money affairs, is the best. Of course, an American woman may be spending money lavishly while her husband is in actual difficulties—it often happens. The men take a pride in seeing the women magnificently. pride in seeing the women magnificently dressed, and in giving them jewels and fine houses. And yet the American man is no at all ostentatious for himself. However, must say that if American women meet with great reverses of fortune they are al-ways very courageous about them; the habit of mind is very philosophic in Amer-And they are always very bright an vivacious and extremely adaptable.

The French Foreign Legion.

corps the Foreign Legion, the like of which exists in no other army than the French. One of the last decrees signed by M. Loubet has been that conferring the Cross of bet has been that conferring the Cross of the Legion of Honor upon the regiment, which will now display the order on its col-ors. The Foreign Legion consists solely of foreigners, chiefly Alsatians, Germans, Ital-ians and Spaniards. All, of course, are vol-unteers, and many are deserters from their own country. Yet these men have time after time stood by their adopted flag to the last gasp, and no French regiment has American patriotism which every good citi-zen will desire to see.
